PLAN RELIGIOUS CENSUS IN TOWN

Gettysburg Ministerial Association will Endeavor to Learn the Number of those who do not Attend Any Gettysburg Church.

The Gettysburg Ministerial Association decided at their regular monthly meeting on Monday to take a religious census of the town with the idea in-view of getting a larger attendance and membership in the various churches.

The plan will be to divide the town into sections, the census of each of which will be under the direction of one minister. The ministers will not take the census but will have lay members of their congregations do the work.

Among the information which the association wishes to gather from this work will be the number attending the various churches, the number not attending any church, the number of children not attending Sunday School and the preference of people who do not attend any church.

With this last information it will be possible for a more systematic campaign to be followed to get into the churches of town those who do not now attend. It has been said that there are one thousand people in Gettysburg who never attend church and to secure their presence will be one of the aims and purposes of the census taking.

BOVE, REMEMBERED HERE, IS WELL TAKEN CARE OF

It has become publicly known that Mrs. Joseph Drexel, who died recently, made provisions in her will for the establishment of a trust fund, placed in the hands of her daughter, Mrs. Josephine Drexel Emmert, of New York, to be expended in furthering the musical aspirations of Domenico A. Bove, a young Italian, who for the last four years has been a student in the Royal Academy of Music in Vienna, and who will be graduated from that famous institution next summer. Young Bove played here at several times, coming with Ralph P. Lewars and other Philadelphia musicians. Many local people met the boy and delighted in his work. More than $10,000 worth of bonds have been set aside by the heirs of the estate to be used in developing the young musician into a finished artist. Before going abroad young Bove studied under a recognized leader of music in Philadelphia. Mrs. Drexel took a practical interest in the young musician while a student here and abroad and his training has been made possible through her philanthropic work.

As a boy of nine years, Domenico brought tears to the eyes of listeners and pennies into his cap as he aided his father in supporting a large family by playing his violin in the streets of "Little Italy." The same boy, now nearly 20 years old, is known far and wide for his musical attainments. All Europe is singing the praises of the young Philadelphian and paying him the tribute of associating his name with that of the greatest violinists of the country. The transition from a downtown tenement house to the centre of musical culture was brought about by the practical interest Mrs. Drexel took in music and in struggling musicians, and through her the world has been given another genius who bids fair to add luster to the field of music.

In 1860 he became principal of the Cumberland Valley Institute and in 1865 retired from the institute to accept the presidency of Irving College. In 1868 he resigned and entered the ministry of the Episcopal church, having filled parishes in Gettysburg, Germantown and Philadelphia.

HEARS CLASSES BY TELEPHONE

New methods of teaching by correspondence and other ways have been outdone at Gettysburg College by a telephone system which has been put into force following the confinement of Prof. Richard S. Kirby in quarantine.

Prof. Kirby has charge of the engineering courses in the local institution and is quarantined at the home of Mrs. W. C. Sheely following the appearance of diphtheria in the family. Prof. Kirby could leave the house by following the requirements of the Board of Health regarding fumigation and so on but deemed it best to safeguard the college students thoroughly and so determined that he would stay away entirely.

In order that his work may not be interfered with by the three weeks' quarantine a system of reciting by telephone has been devised and the members of his classes will hold recitations over the telephone, the class meeting at the home of Dr. Granville and the professor hearing them from the other end of the wire.

Of course some of the work cannot be done in this manner and the other professors at college will attend to these branches. Miss Frances Sheely who contracted diphtheria is recovering nicely and no other cases are reported.

KICKED BY MULE

George Hull, aged 20 years son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Hull, of Oxford township, was seriously injured while assisting to water several horses near the barn. He was kicked in the face by a colt, breaking the lower jaw in two places. Fortunately, the colt had no shoes on, thus avoiding more serious injury. Dr. J. L. Sheetz, of New Oxford, was hastily summoned, and rendered all possible relief. Although the injuries are of a very painful and serious nature, the young man was able to take nourishment in a liquid form on Saturday, and the indications are that he will recover.

FIRST CARLOAD OF MARBLE HERE

Fine White Marble from Baker Quarries Received for Federal Building. Will be Followed by Many More.

The first of forty carloads of marble for the new federal building has arrived and is being viewed by many people, all of whom are impressed with its unusual beauty. The marble is almost pure white and of an exceptionally fine quality. The first car arrived Monday, nine more are on the way and forty in all will be required for the erection of the handsome new post-office. It comes from Baker, Chester County.

Close inspection of the foundation walls laid last fall showed that frost had done some damage at the southwest corner and for the past several days masons have been at work tearing down this portion of the wall preparatory to rebuilding. The substantial character of the foundation is clearly demonstrated by the difficulty with which the masons have been taking down the defective portion, the concrete mortar holding the bricks so tightly that, frequently, the hard bricks have broken when an effort was made to dislodge them. It is considered most fortunate that the cold weather had no effect on any other part of the building.

The continued winter temperature has retarded greatly the work at the site for it was hoped by this time to have the granite course in place. As soon as this is finished the marble will be put in position, two large derricks being used and as soon as active operations are started rapid progress may be expected. The real beauty of the marble to be used will then become apparent.

RESPIE GRANTED GILBERT

Leonidas W. Gilbert, the young colored man who murdered Daniel K. Miller, the Harrisburg hotelkeeper, has been granted a respite by Governor Fener.

The date for Gilbert's execution was fixed for March 26, but his counsel having asked the Board of Pardons for a continuance of his case, which was granted, it necessitated a respite. Governor Fener reached Harrisburg on Saturday afternoon and was informed of conditions, and he directed a respite to be issued, staying the time of execution from March 26 to April 25.

The Board of Pardons will meet on April 17, when the after-discovered evidence promised by Attorney Carter that he thinks will have an influence over the board and lead to the commutation of Gilbert's death sentence to imprisonment for life will be presented, and the board will at once take action.

Gilbert was informed of the respite and seemed to be much pleased over the Governor's action. It gives him at least a month more of life. He has been very devout for some time and occupies his time in prayer and devotions.

OVER NIGHT

"Over Night," the laugh-compelling comedy, comes to the New Colonial Theatre, Hanover, Thursday, March 28, direct from the Shubert Theatre, Boston, where it ran for three months to capacity houses. Created for laughing purposes only, it certainly fills the bill to the limit, for from the moment the curtain rises on the first scene of the opening act until the finale, the audience is convulsed. It all happens over night, and hinges upon the blunders of two newly married couples on their honeymoon. From the moment that they set foot upon the steamer, and make the mistake about their baggage, whereby the husband of one and the wife of the other start up the Hudson, until the last curtain falls and their escapades are happily explained, there is laughter and fun in volumes and the audience is overwhelmed.

EASTER CANTATA IN HOLY WEEK

Chautauqua Chorus will Give Easter Cantata on Wednesday Evening of Holy Week in Brua Chapel. The Program.

At the regular Monday evening rehearsal of the Chautauqua Chorus it was decided to render the Easter cantata on the evening of April third in Brua Chapel. The event will begin at eight o'clock, allowing all the churches time for their usual Wednesday evening services which will be of more than usual significance on account of Passion Week.

The original plan was to give the cantata on Easter Monday evening or on Easter Sunday afternoon but various considerations entered in and made either of these times impracticable so that Wednesday night of Holy Week was determined upon.

J. Lincoln Hall's "The Day of Resurrection" will be given by the chorus of about one hundred voices and the soloists will be Miss Reba Miller, Miss Pauline Rudisill, Edgar Miller and Calvin Hartman. In addition to the solos in the cantata there will be solos by Mrs. J. B. Baker, Miss Ruth Clutz, Mrs. R. E. Zinn and Miss Reba Miller and a duet by Miss Helen Rupp and Edgar Miller.

The two coronation hymns which will be remembered by all who heard the chorus sing at the Sunday School convention last fall will also be used. At Monday evening's rehearsal these two hymns, "Hail Him" and "Immanuel" were practiced and the manner in which they were sung showed the chorus to be thoroughly familiar with them.

No admission will be charged for the Easter cantata but an opportunity will be given to those who wish to contribute anything by the presence of a plate at the door.

CHAUTAUQUA FOR MECHANICSBURG

Pearson, in his charming masterpiece, "The Poetry of Life," and Mrs. George C. Pickett, the widow of the famous Confederate general, who will lecture on "Pickett's Charge at Gettysburg."
